Education InsideOut To Address COVID School Changes via Webinar

Parent Concerns about Covid and the Classroom available to all via YouTube ahead of Oct. Change

Wilmington, NC -- October 2, 2020 – Education InsideOut (EIO), a Wilmington, NC-based non-profit that bridges the gap between school and home, has announced a free webinar to address the impact of school attendance on families. On Thursday, October 8th at 5:30pm, EIO Executive Director Tikisha-Michelle Johnson will lead a panel discussion to allay concerns about COVID and the classroom. It will be held via Zoom on both YouTube and Facebook .

“Families have already been hugely impacted by the impact of COVID-19 and the associated changes forced upon the education system,” said Tikisha-Michelle. “On October 12th New Hanover County Schools will move from Plan C to Plan B, again unsettling students and parents. Our objective is to provide guidance for parents, help them experience less stress and find coping mechanisms to help their children succeed.”

Insights on how to handle school attendance change and address perspectives of parents in the community will be led by Education InsideOut, with additional information shared by:

- Elder Kristie Ford, a parent of a 2nd grader who is returning to school;
- Kelly Sechrist, a parent of a college student, high school senior and a middle school student;
- Jacqueline Daniels, parent of 2 high school students plus a 3rd grader who’s not returning to school; and
- Stephanie Walker, candidate for New Hanover County School Board.

“It’s our mission to empower parents and teachers to positively and proactively impact the lives of children,” said Tikisha-Michelle. “This webinar is one way we hope to foster healthier homes, so children can succeed in every aspect of their lives.”
